

ACI Scholarly Blog Index Added to EBSCO Discovery Service

ACI Information Group's research database, the ACI Scholarly Blog Index, has been added to EBSCO Discovery Service (EDS).

New York, NY (PRWEB) November 04, 2015 -- ACI Information Group's research database, the ACI Scholarly Blog Index, has been added to EBSCO Discovery Service (EDS). In partnership with EBSCO Information Services, researchers at libraries that have implemented EDS can now discover scholarly blogs in their search results with direct links to the ACI Scholarly Blog Index website to review authors' credentials and social media footprints.

“With the integration of the ACI Scholarly Blog Index into EDS, students, faculty, and librarians at institutions that use the EDS platform will be able to easily find relevant, credentialed blog content for their academic research needs,” explains ACI Information Group President Larry Schwartz. “The purpose of EBSCO Discovery Service is to enhance the discoverability of research content. The ACI Scholarly Blog Index supports that purpose by offering not only authoritative content but also comprehensive metadata, which improves discoverability.”

EBSCO Information Services is the leading discovery service provider for libraries in the world with more than 8,000 discovery customers in over 100 countries. The EBSCO Discovery Service platform provides each institution with a comprehensive single search box for EBSCO's entire collection, including historical archives, hundreds of databases, and more. Through the ACI and EBSCO partnership, the ACI Scholarly Blog Index is now one of those databases.

“For years, EBSCO has worked to change the way resources are searched in order to help users access the highest quality content for the best research experience,” says Schwartz. “The ACI Scholarly Blog Index is a perfect complement. It gives researchers access to timely insights from top scholars that can be difficult to find. By integrating the ACI Scholarly Blog Index into EDS, student, librarian, and faculty researchers will find this content directly in their search results, which will significantly improve their research experiences.”

About ACI Information Group

ACI Information Group (www.aci.info) is the world's leading aggregator of editorially selected and curated social media and blog publications. With over 10,000 news and commentary blogs and more than one million scholarly blog posts in its Indices, ACI is revolutionizing the way people conduct research by enabling them to find the content they've been missing. Professionals, researchers, scholars, and students use the highly authoritative insights and analysis provided through ACI's editorially selected collection of social media publications to find information that is unavailable in traditional media and journals. Publishers choose to include their content in the ACI Index to reach new audiences and bolster real-time scholarly communications and post-publication discourse.

Contact Information

Larry Schwartz
ACI Information Group
<http://www.aci.info>
+1 646-873-6423

Online Web 2.0 Version

You can read the online version of this press release here.